Fund commentary

The Fund's traditional fixed income portfolio was mixed over the period. The Russell Investments International fixed Bond Fund – $A Hedged delivered negative absolute returns in February but narrowly outperformed its benchmark, while the Russell Investments Australian Bond Fund was flat for the month. In terms of our extended fixed income exposure, both Metrics Credit and the Russell Investments Australian Floating Rate Fund performed well over the period; the latter continuing to benefit from running yield in excess of the benchmark. The Fund's equity portfolio was also mixed in February. Within our Australian equity portfolio, both the Russell Investments Australian Shares Core Fund and the Russell Investments Australian Opportunities Fund (RAOF) delivered positive excess returns for the month but underperformed their benchmarks. The Core Fund benefited from stock selection amongst financials, while RAOF's outperformance was driven by stock selection within the materials space. In terms of global equities, the Russell Investments Tax Effective Global Shares Fund (TEGS) underperformed its benchmark in February; though it did record positive absolute returns for the month. TEGS was impacted by stock selection in the US; notably underweights to large growth names like Apple and Tesla. The Russell Investments Multi-Asset Factor Exposure Fund also underperformed over the period. Elsewhere, our exposures to global and Australian listed property weighed on overall performance, while a weaker Australian dollar boosted the returns of the Fund's assets denominated in foreign currency.
