Fund objective

To provide a total return, before costs and tax, in line with the Class's benchmark over rolling three year periods with a focus on reducing the Fund's exposure to carbon relative to benchmark.

Fund strategy

The Fund invests predominantly in a broad range of international shares listed on stock exchanges in developed and emerging international markets. The Fund targets a reduction in carbon exposure, and an increase in exposure to renewable energy, compared to the Benchmark. The Fund also employs certain investment exclusions. Derivatives may be used by the Fund to obtain or reduce exposure to securities and markets, to implement investment strategies and to manage risks. Foreign currency exposures for the Class are largely hedged back to Australian dollars using derivatives.

[^] For further information on how the Fund seeks to achieve a reduced carbon exposure, an increase in exposure to renewable energy, and the investment exclusions employed, refer to ESG considerations in the 'How we invest your money' section of the Additional Information Booklet.

Fund commentary

The Russell Investments Low Carbon Global Shares Fund returned 4.8% in hedged AUD terms in February, outperforming the benchmark by a modest 0.1%.

The Fund's exclusion of companies involved in defence contracting contributed positively to performance over the period. This included nil holdings in US names Lockheed Martin and Boeing; the latter extending its recent decline after the US Federal Aviation Administration gave the plane maker 90 days to develop an action plan to address what it described as systemic quality-control issues at the company. Stock selection within the consumer discretionary sector also added value; notably overweights to Chinese-owned travel agency Trip.com and Indian multinational restaurant aggregator and food delivery company Zomato. Both stocks posted very strong gains for the month. Our structural underweight to the utilities space added further, albeit modest value over the period. In contrast, stock selection within the information technology sector detracted from overall performance; notably an underweight to US company Super Micro Computer, which climbed 66% in February. Stock selection within healthcare also weighed on returns, including overweights to US medical device maker Insulet Corp. and Swiss hearing solutions provider Sonova Holding AG. Both stocks significantly underperformed the broader market over the period. Performance was further impacted by stock selection within energy and materials; though this was partly offset by our structural underweights to both sectors.
